HELP THE LEPERS

Grand Benefit Tendered by Professor Bristol.

Hawaiian Band to Attend - New Tricks by Mules - Japanese Acrobats.

Through the kindness of Minister of Foreign Affairs Cooper the Hawaiian Band will play at Bristol's Pavilion Monday evening on the occasion of the monster benefit tendered by Professor Bristol to the unfortunate lepers on Molokai.

It has been learned during the past week that many of those on the island are in rather distressed circumstances, and in some instances white people have gone there with absolutely nothing to make their homes comfortable. The Government provides for these unfortunate, but the uses to which the appropriations, as well as the money itself may be put, is limited. Some invalids are well to do, and the fact that they have what they wish makes the condition of the poorer ones more deplorable.

It is mainly to aid the more unfortunate ones on Molokai that Professor Bristol tenders this benefit, and in it Minister Cooper lends his hearty cooperation. It is one of the few occasions on which the Hawaiian Band is heard at entertainments where an admission fee is charged. Benefits have been given here before for the same purpose, but the results, when foreign companies have been the promoters, have been far from satisfactory. Professor Bristol having heard of this, he requested Minister Cooper to send his own representatives to the box office to count the receipts and see that they were properly distributed.

The show on this occasion will be a big one, and entirely new acts will be introduced. The Japanese acrobats and tumblers will perform feats with material which they received from Japan by the last steamer. It is hoped that the charitably-disposed people of the city will donate liberally to this cause and that the house may be packed from door to door. The past season has been a good one to the capitalists of Honolulu. This will be a good opportunity for them to show their sympathies for the poor and afflicted.

MYSTERIOUS FIND.

Adventures of Messrs. Fitzgerald and Greene at Ewa.

Messrs. Fitzgerald and Greene, of the Labor Commission, returned from Ewa last evening, after a very pleasant trip in and about the plantation at that place. Mingled with their pleasure, a large part of which was derived from the hospitality of Manager and Mrs. Lowrey, the visitors managed to note a few things which may prove of consequence in the future.

A trip into the mountains with Manager Lowrey and his daughter was made by Messrs. Fitzgerald and Greene before returning to the city yesterday. They took no guns along with them, expecting merely to view the beauties of the surrounding country and fix firmly in mind certain points which they wanted to learn. Before they knew it, goats and turkeys galore seemed to come from behind every rock and tree until the mountains were simply swarming. Then it was that guns were thought of and luck was set down as being very bad.

Nothing daunted, Mr. Fitzgerald jumped from his horse and proceeded to chase a fat turkey, but try as he might, the tail feathers kept just so far ahead of him, and he finally gave up in despair.

Mr. Greene saw a fine goat standing out in bold relief on a large rock, and, picking up a heavy pebble, he hurled it against the animal with such force that it disappeared down the precipice. He was not easily discouraged, and was soon walking up to a kid with coaxing both in his voice and eyes. The kid did not seem to recognize a friend, and when Mr. Greene was within a foot of it suddenly rolled away.

The whole thought of the two visitors was a gun, and even on the return, soaked to the skin with rain as they were, the idea that a gun might turn up in some unexpected place was predominant.

How many, then, must have been Mr. Fitzgerald's feelings when, as he was riding along with Miss Lowrey, he spied a gun under his horse's feet. Alighting, he soon had the firearm in his hands. Examination by the stock brought to light the letters, "C. G. H." The ejector was thrown back, and the trigger was ready for action. Twelve shells were taken out. The rust and dirt of perhaps two years made it impossible to do anything with what they found was a Winchester carbine. Handing it to Miss Lowrey, Mr. Fitzgerald desired her to keep it as a memento of the trip.

Whether or not there is some deep tragedy connected with the leaving of the rifle in such an unfrequented place slipped the minds of all at the time, but is very probable that when the number is reported at police headquarters an interesting story will result.

Mr. Fitzgerald does not like to think that "All Fools' Day" had anything to do with the finding of the carbine.

Police Court Notes.

In the case of Yanashige, charged with stealing some blankets from the Sailors' Home, defendant was found not guilty and discharged.

Say Hop withdrew his former plea of not guilty to the charge of gross cheat and plead guilty. Sentence was suspended until moved on by the prosecution.

Five Chinamen plead guilty to the charge of gambling and were fined $10 and costs each.

Yanashige, on an additional charge of stealing $72 from one of his countrymen, was found not guilty and discharged.

In the case of Virginia P. Castino, for assault and battery, defendant was found guilty and fined $10 and costs.

In the case of P. de Jesus for indecent exposure, motion for discharge was granted.

The case of Shimizu and Gallagher for alleged violation of the immigration laws, was further postponed until April 6th.

Supreme Court Decisions.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the judgment for C. H. Rose in his case against Yoshimura et al., deciding that his land award, dated August 10, 1852, is superior to the land award if the defendants, dated June 6, 1855.

P. E. Hine is the agent for H. Hackfeld & Co. at Lahaina. Some time since a clerk named Shimisaka, in Hine's employ, sold a tub of saki to one Shimbo, and sent in the order to H. Hackfeld & Co. Hine has no liquor license in Lahaina, but the company has in Honolulu. The saki was shipped to Lahaina and the shipping receipt made out to Shimbo. When the liquor arrived Shimbo paid for it, the money was put in the agent's money drawer by Shimisaki, and Shimbo took his saki from the wharf. The Republic then brought suit against Hine for selling liquor without a license. The District Magistrate at Lahaina found him guilty and the case was appealed. Yesterday the Supreme Court decided that the question before the Magistrate at Lahaina was whether or not the sale was made there. The Court sustained the decision of the District Magistrate in finding Hine guilty of selling spirituous liquor without a license.

Circuit Court News.

A. V. Gear, administrator of the estate of A. W. Peterson, has petitioned the Court to sell certain real estate.

In the case of John S. Ellis et al. vs. Nannie R. Rice et al., the defendant has filed a disclaimer to all right, title, etc., in the III of Makalihi, the title of which is sought to be quieted by the suit.

On the motion to tax the costs in the case of W. C. Weedon vs. E. B. Waterhouse, yesterday, Kinney & Ballou, for the plaintiff, took exception to the Court's ruling on the attorneys' fees.

In the case of Pipilani vs. George Houghtaling and C. J. McCarthy, the Court rendered an oral decision, giving judgment for the plaintiff for $720, with interest and disallowed attorneys' commissions; also, giving judgment for the plaintiff for $242.87. Mr. Creighton noted exceptions.

They're All Right.

I met old Naper Tandy, and shook him by the hand, saying: "How is the 290 boys, and how do they stand?" The 290 boys are way up, as any we have seen. Just drop around and see them, when you're wearing of the green. They keep some first-class livery rigs, horses and hacks that's up-to-date, that's what. They'll welcome you at any time, whether you're wearing the green or not.
